KOSHER MEAT FAMINE CONTINUES; CHICKEN LOW

Despite assurance from Washington that some method of supplying kosher meat to Indianapolis would be devised, kosher butchers here were skeptical this week that the famine would be relieved here for some time. Under the present ruling, there will be no kosher meat available until August 1.

The situation was aggravated this week-end as the supply of chickens dwindled, with the butchers being unable to buy any chickens Wednesday, although previous purchases made it possible to fill all orders this week. Delicatessen meats were ample at most of the butchers, but Dobrowitz, who make their own delicatessen, have only enough on hand for just a day or two more.

Rabbi Israel Chodos, who has been leading the fight to secure a revision of the ruling which stopped kosher slaughtering in the city was in receipt of a letter from G. F. Laswell, of the Meat Division of the O.P.A. in Washington saying that the situation would be remedied and offering two alternatives. One was the use of Kingan and Company or Armour and Company here, with a supply of cattle being diverted from the Chicago market, and the other was permission of Chicago slaughterers to ship meat to Indianapolis.

The local butchers, however, had already investigated both these possibilities and took little hope from the letter. Armour and Kingan both declared that they are taxed to their limits at present and could take on no additional slaughtering.

ARAB LEGION WIPED OUT BY RUSSIANS

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON — An Arab legion recruited in Europe by the former Mufti of Jerusalem under German auspices was reported by the Daily Sketch to have been wiped out in recent battles in Southern Russia. The Germans, it was reported, had promised the legion, which was organized to fight "for the freedom of Iraq and Palestine," that it would participate in a Nazi invasion of the Near East. It was composed of Arab students in Europe and former members of the French Foreign Legion.

Memorandum to Revision Committee Would Nullify Wishes of State Lodge

Special

GARY—The recommendations of the State Board of Directors, and even the word of the State Association of the B'nai B'rith meeting in annual convention would be discarded if the Constitution Revision Committee of the organization meeting here this Sunday follows the advice of Jack N. Gole, president given in a memorandum to the committee.

Although the annual convention, nominally the supreme governing body of any organization, at its meeting in 1941 in South Bend voted that the nominating committee must bring in the names of at least two men for each office excepting that of president and secretary, Mr. Gole's recommendation is that this vote be ignored. He also suggests that the procedure approved by the State Board of Directors at a meeting in Indianapolis last June for the nominating committee to meet at least thirty days prior to the annual convention, be thrown out.

Under the suggestion of Mr. Gole, the nominating committee report would be made at the first order of business of the afternoon session of the annual convention, and the election would follow immediately.

Mr. Gole contends that the nominating committee would find it difficult to meet in advance of the annual convention and therefore should secure nominations from the various lodges for each office. The committee would place in nomination one or more candidates for each office, with the privilege of nominations from the floor.

The recommendation also goes into the question of official delegates to the annual convention, and this recommendation too, throws out the vote of the State Board of Directors, whose expressed desire was that each lodge have four delegates, who may be elected regardless of whether they are chair officers. Mr. Gole suggests that each lodge have five delegates to consist of the chair officers and one past president. In addition all State Association past presidents, all present officers, and all State Association Directors shall be accredited delegates, under Mr. Gole's plans.

The paper also goes into the recommendations of the Survey and Scope Committee, such as the election of State Directors for two years instead of one-year terms, with no succession, and half retiring at the end of each year; a special executive committee to handle matters of the State Association during intervals between meetings of the State Board, and the raising in importance of group meetings.

Heading the Constitutional Revision Committee is Jack I. Spevak, of South Bend, while members are Seymour Weisberger, South Bend and Reuben Berman, Marion, past presidents of the State Association; Alvin D. Blieden, Michigan City; Milton J. Fineberg, Indianapolis; Hyman Cohen, East Chicago; Frank Sparber, Gary, and Byron Novitsky, Fort Wayne.

Rumanian Offer to Ship 70,000 Jews to Palestine Stirs Zionists

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, this week acted to secure the acceptance by the Allied Nations of an alleged proposal made by the Rumanian Government, expressing willingness to permit the transfer of 70,000 Rumanian Jews from the concentration camps in Transnistria to Palestine or any other place of refuge selected by the Allies.

The offer is reported to have reached the United Nations through neutral channels. It provides that a sum of approximately $200 must be paid to the Rumanian treasury for each of the 70,000 Jews permitted to leave the country. This sum is to cover the "travelling expenses" of the refugee. The released Jews would, under the Rumanian proposal, be transported on Rumanian ships displaying the insignia of the Vatican to indicate that the vessels were on a non-belligerent mission. The transfer would be effected under the supervision of the Papal Nuncio and the Bishop of Bucharest.

U. S. Officials Skeptical

The report of this proposal, though not confirmed in official circles in Washington, has provoked a flurry of activity among Zionist leaders now in the capital. Zionist spokesmen here pointed out that the plan, if accepted, would not only save the lives of 70,000 Jews, but would help to relieve the manpower shortage in Palestine. They brushed aside the suggestion that the Nazis could plant spies among the 70,000 emigres and pointed to the fact that among the 45,000 Jews who have entered Palestine since the beginning of the war, not one spy has been found, since the Jewish Agency assumed full responsibility for safeguarding against spies getting into the country in the guise of refugees.

Officials in Washington viewed the report of the Rumanian proposal with skepticism. They pointed out that similar reports have not been confirmed in the past. They also emphasized that the proposed use of Rumanian ships would require the approval of the Nazi military command and that the Nazis badly need all the shipping they have in the Black Sea. They added that Nazi propaganda to the Arabs frequently reported that large numbers of Jews are about to enter Palestine.

Zionist leaders here, on the other hand, predicted that no difficulties would arise from Arab opposition now that it no longer can be financed by the Axis. (In London it was stated that the United Nations had taken no decision on the reported Rumanian proposal because it would be risky to stir up trouble throughout the Moslem world and also because the shipping difficulties would be tremendous if a more distant haven than Palestine were chosen.)

See Offer as Blackmail

The Rumanian proposal is interpreted by well-informed circles here as an indication that Rumania expects the Russian Army to capture Transnistria which is situated between the Bug and the Dniester rivers. About 250,000 Rumanian Jews were deported to Transnistria soon after the Nazi occupation of the territory, which was placed under Rumanian administration. Apparently no more than 70,000 of the victims remain alive, and the Rumanian authorities would consider it a good bargain if they could secure $14,000,000 for the release of the exiled Jews before the latter are released by the Russian Army.

EVANSVILLE — Evansville's "Three Musketeers" are now in the service of Uncle Sam. Pvt. Leonard Greenberg, Pvt. Alvin Raphael and Pvt. Leonard Pearson have been life-long buddies and are 19 years old. They went to grade school and high school together, were attending Evansville College and had planned to open offices together. They were sworn into the army reserve together and applied for the meteorological course. Only five boys from Evansville were accepted and our Musketeers were three-fifths of them.

They have been sent to Ft. Hayes, Columbus, O., to be outfitted and will attend Vanderbilt University for a course in meteorology. At the completion of their course they will be commissioned.

The boys haven't decided when the war is won whether to open their office as an auditing concern or a meteorology concern, but you can bet it will be a partnership.

Kosher Meat Situation Critical; New Ruling Sought

Indianapolis Jewry was faced this week with a prolonged kosher meat famine, as a technical misinterpretation of a ruling of the Office of Price Administration stopped kosher slaughtering at the Hoosier Abattoir, 621 W. Ray St., last week end. One local butcher described the outlook here as "very dark." Under the present ruling no kosher meat will be available here until for at least several months.

Confusion over quotas was ascribed as the cause of the situation. The Jewish butchers have been limited to 70 per cent of their 1941 supplies, and although all local butchers are keeping well within that limit, the fact that several of the butchers have moved from slaughter houses which have closed since 1941, is said to be responsible for the mix-up.

At a meeting of the local butchers, together with Rabbi Israel Chodos, Rabbi David Shapiro, Rabbi Samuel Fox, at the home of Rabbi S. A. Katz, Monday night, it was decided to seek a ruling from Washington on the matter, and Rabbi Chodos Thursday was expecting word from the Washington office of the OPA.

Meanwhile butchers announced that an ample quantity of chickens was available at least for the present, and delicatessen meats, such as salami, corned beef, and pepper meat, although not available in unlimited supply, were plentiful for at least several weeks.

A second meeting was held Tuesday night at the home of Rabbi Katz.

Washington Letter Discounted By City Butchers

could be bought on the Indianapolis market, but there was no place to have it slaughtered, even if the government did relax the ruling which caused the entire mix-up. The ruling prevents a butcher who goes from one slaughter house to another from taking his quota with him. This ruling caused the closing of the Hoosier Abattoir, which had been doing all the kosher slaughtering in the city. Originally several other meat packers were handling some of the kosher business, but they closed down last year, and the kosher butchers went to the Hoosier Abattoir under the belief that their quota went along with them. The Hoosier Abattoir had received the same construction on the OPA ruling and were operating under that understanding.

The OPA clamped down on the slaughter house on Feb. 3, declaring it had overslaughtered, and pointed out that a butcher could not take his quota with him because it makes practically impossible any government supervision of rationing.

As far as getting meat from Chicago, practically every local butcher has already contacted every kosher slaughter house in Chicago, all of whom protested that they were unable to supply even their regular customers and would not sell to any new customers.

Meanwhile Jewish housewives were taking the situation in good grace. For the past two weeks, chicken has supplanted meat on most menus, but with chickens being added to the hard-to-get list, milk dishes and fish will probably bear the burden until some relaxation in the present ruling is made.

Rabbi Chodos may be sent to Washington if some relief does not come soon, it is said.

The editor's chair,

The announcement in last week's "Jewish Ledger" of Rochester, N. Y. that its publisher, Joseph H. Biben, is "now on overseas duty with our troops" as a military and war correspondent, is entirely unfair to this great Anglo-Jewish publisher. No doubt, modest Mr. Biben would resent this very apparent attempt to make it seem that he is a member of our armed forces.

In a large ad, underneath the American Eagle, in the same issue, is listed the names of the employees of that paper who actually are fighting in the U. S. armies, and then spread across the bottom of the announcement is modest Mr. Biben's name.

Nor could the modest Mr. Biben be guilty of the very apparent untruth on page one, together with his picture, saying that:

"Mr. Biben, who is publisher of The Jewish Ledger and American Hebrew, will visit the Jewish communities of England and other countries.

"As the only American newspaperman in England representing the Anglo-Jewish press, he will meet with leading British and British-Jewish personalities who will give him first hand information on conditions in Europe. Since England is now the clearing house for news from all over the continent, this information should prove of the utmost importance for future publication in this country."

Now The Jewish Post was not consulted in that announcement, but being a small publication, it is quite possible that the more affluent publications did unite together to accord that honor to him. And this despite the fact that many of these publications had to print editorials warning their readers against Mr. Biben's

Revisions Committee Should Follow Lodges Wishes

IF THE Constitution Revision Committee of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith, at its meeting this Sunday in Gary, follows the advice of Jack N. Gole, president of the association to scrap the improvements in management and operation of the organization recently approved, it will not only run directly counter to the wishes of the organization as expressed both in its convention and by the State Board of Directors, but it will axe the movement which for the past few years has been trying to make the Association more important in Indiana.

That Mr. Gole's wishes may not be followed, and that Mr. Gole is no doubt sincere in his recommendations are two things that go without saying, but it must not be forgotten that the moves that Mr. Gole would nullify were made when the younger men were present to say their piece, and not as at present, away fighting the war for democracy.

There was a pronounced feeling throughout the lodges of the Association in connection with each one of the points which Mr. Gole would slough off. These lodges through their directors, and at South Bend, expressed their wishes on these specific points. For the Constitution Revision Committee to run counter to these democratically expressed wishes would be the height of political chicanery. On points on which the vote of the lodges has not been recorded, the Revision Committee would be exercising proper prerogative if it attempted to gage the wishes of the members of the organization, but how the convention could overlook the specific demands of the lodges, is hard to conceive.

Needed, A Strong Revisionist Movement

NEEDED: A strong Revisionist Organization. Such a statement is not as absurd as at first it may seem. For right now, at the present, never has there been felt as keenly the absence of a strong Right wing group in the Zionist movement.

Traceable to this lack of a militant band blinded in their zeal for the Jewish Homeland into taking the bull by the horns and demanding all of the Near East for the Jewish people, unlimited immigration and now, illegal immigration, nothing for the Arabs, is the present costly conflict between the Zionists of America and the Council for American Judaism.

For were Jabotinsky still alive today to lead his ranks and make his seemingly outrageous demands just at the moment when the British Foreign office think they have everything under control, then the new group instead of having any energy left to fight the middle of the road Zionists, would be too busy defending the Jew against the so-called vilifications of Mr. Jabotinsky to worry about the moderate requests of Weizmann and the World Zionist Organization.

Current Comment

Interfaith Meetings Example of Light in a Darkened World.—Fl. Wayne Journal-Gazette— . . . This (inter-faith) meeting is in the best American tradition. It exemplifies the national tolerance of and respect for the other citizen's belief and opinions. It demonstrates that a country can have unity without uniformity.

It recalls that the Bill of Rights in our Federal Constitution provides that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

It does more. It makes clear that that great doctrine is not only written in our fundamental law, but that it is written in the hearts of the American people.

The more often such gatherings are held the better it will be for our democracy. The exchange of views leads to understanding and understanding leads to good will.

The people of the world must be aware today as never before of the evil results of hatred, intolerance and misunderstanding. This war grew out of these negative and destructive qualities of the mind and the emotions. They lead to chaos and indescribable misery.

Thank God America has learned the lessons of tolerance and good will and can hold the light of its example before a darkened and stumbling world.

Call for Fences and Railing in Jewish Cemeteries Here Reminds Temple Beth-El (Detroit) Bulletin of Sacrifices in Middle Ages—The recent appeal of the Synagogue Council of America to plot-holders in Jewish cemeteries to donate fences and railings for use as scrap metal to help relieve the critical shortage, recalls similar Jewish sacrifices made in the past. In the Middle Ages, when kidnapers held Jews as valuable hostages, Jewish communities went so far as to sell the silver ornaments of the Torah to ransom their brothers. Indeed, the Talmud declares that even money collected for a synagogue building may be diverted to this purpose. In later days, when, after the French Revolution, that country was threatened by a European coalition that aimed to bring about the restoration of autocracy, French synagogues contributed their candelabra to the war effort and because of the necessity of redeeming the captives.

Today, with the cause of freedom at stake, congregations will without a doubt respond promptly and willingly to the appeal.

Newcomers Eager to Fight for America Says Detroit Temple Bulletin — Large numbers of refugees, including volunteers as well as draftees, have joined the American fighting forces, according to the National Refugee Service. Hakoah News of Cleveland tells that ten per cent of the 250 refugee members of its organization joined the Army before the United States entered the war. Preliminary reports also show that 14 of the newcomers from Houston are in the service, 24 from Cincinnati, 12 from Dallas, 21 from Seattle, six from Lancaster, Pa. Under new procedures, aliens in the service may petition for citizenship after three months waiving many of the usual naturalization requirements. Even among those not eligible for combat, the first question of today's refugees is "How can we help America win?" The N.R.S. has been busy directing its clients to Red Cross work, sale of war stamps, collection of waste materials, air-raid service, and the like.

TOWN CRIER

By G. M. C.

The Jewish Post has all the mazel. I don't suppose you heard, but Monday night there was a three-alarm fire over in Terre Haute, gutting the large buildings occupied by Silver's, Meis Bros., and Levinson's. Why does that concern The Post? Well just last week Silver's had entered into an arrangement with four other large specialty shops in Indiana to begin a weekly advertising campaign in our paper. Now if those other stores just don't burn down.

The Post finds itself being called on more and more by persons who want things done. And The Post is quite willing to help. Usually when someone wants something done and right away they get in touch with us, knowing that we produce. Anyway Louis Novick called last Tuesday, needing a rabbi for a funeral in Muncie. Naturally we complied. Which reminded me of the time when the B'nai B'rith in Kokomo needed some kosher meat for one of their meetings, and called at the last minute to get it for them because someone had forgotten to take care of the matter. Well we got the order on the bus and the supper went off on schedule.

When The Post added its editorial board some months ago and the rabbis began writing editorials for us, an unexpected difficulty arose, in that the rabbis, some Orthodox, some Reform and some Conservative, campaigned often for objectives that were in direct opposition to those advanced in other editorials, with the result that The Post could not be said to have a consistent editorial policy. Well we've solved that problem with the new solicitors, who sometimes strayed from the path of truth and veracity in seeking subscriptions and advertising.

But Mr. Biben is a busy man and when his agents are called crooks or a national Jewish organization has to warn its local lodges against the tactics of the paper, could you blame Mr. Biben.

Mr. Biben's paper once took an address in the Board of Trade Building here, (as he did in large cities all over) just an address for all mail was immediately forwarded to Rochester, and for a period of several years sold advertising to local merchants although he had practically no circulation here. Also his subscription men used the argument that his paper was practically the sole agent fighting against anti-Semitism in the U. S.

Mr. Biben is now in England representing the Anglo-Jewish press as the announcement reads but The Post will hazard the guess that what Mr. Biben reports will not reach print in the Anglo-Jewish publications he is presumed to represent, except that when he says something is black, the papers will say it is white, and vice versa.

The Indianapolis Section of the Council of Jewish Women at its meeting last month contributed $100 towards the memorial to Hannah G. Solomon, founder, first president and at the time of her death on Dec. 7, honorary president of the National Council of Jewish Women. The memorial, a national project, is the complete X-ray equipment for the Navy hospital at St. Albans, N. Y.

Mrs. Solomon loved to tell that in 1897 when she toured the country for the formation of Council Sections and spoke here, Rabbi Emil Hirsh of Sinai Temple, Chicago, and Rabbi Mayer Messing of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, were the only two rabbis in the United States who dared lend their pulpits to a woman.

Jules Ruben who succeeds George Solomons as secretary of the Delaware Street Temple received his degree as Doctor of Law at the University of Heidelberg. He was among the first soldiers in the first World War to receive from Germany the iron cross for valor in action. Before Hitler's Jewish laws and previous to his coming to America, he was vice-president of the Merker Bank, a branch of the Darmstadter Bank of Berlin. Mr. and Mrs. Ruben and two sons live at 3638 N. Meridian St.

February 22 marks the birthday anniversary of George Washington, Mrs. David Sablosky and H. Joseph Hyman. Mrs. Sablosky is hospitality chairman of the U.S.O. Army and Navy committee at Kirshbaum. She has been president of Hadassah, secretary and, later, first vice-president of Beth El-Zedeck Sisterhood and president of the Federation of Jewish Women's Clubs. Mr. Hyman is executive director of the Jewish Federation. When I was chairman of the Refugee Handicrafts Exchange, his wife, Olga, was a helper I could depend upon and Mr. Hyman's advice carried me through many a difficult situation. Olga told me then that she had met and was married to "Joe" in 1923 at Riga, Latvia, when he was director for the Baltic countries under the American Joint Distribution committee for Overseas Relief. Mr. Hyman is on the boards of the National Refugee Service and the American Association of Social Workers.

Dr. Abraham Cronbach, professor of Social Studies at Hebrew Union College who is conducting the Institute on Judaism Tuesday at the Delaware St. Temple, is a graduate of the 1898 Class, Shortridge High School. He was one of the two students chosen by the class to speak at commencement exercises. Claude G. Bowers, U. S. Ambassador to Chile, was the other student chosen. Dr. Cronbach received his preparatory Hebrew education for the Hebrew Union College from the late Rabbi Mayer Messing. I should know. I was in the graduating class and Rabbi Messing was my father.

Down in Louisville they are establishing a Jewish Vocational Guidance Bureau, which will try to direct Jewish young people of that city away from the crowded professions into perhaps factories, or into fields where their talents may better be fitted. The new bureau is being financed by a $4,500 fund from the local Jewish drive. These vocational guidance bureaus, one of which is at Cincinnati, have proven very successful and have provided even the U.S. government with some excellent material. One of the men in the guidance field in the city schools here told me last week of a brochure sent out by Washington on some of the work done by Jewish groups in the vocational guidance field.

REMEMBER US By Rabbi Aaron M. Rine South Bend, Indiana

THE FEBRUARY issue of the Reader's Digest contains an article by Ben Hecht entitled "Remember Us," which has evoked great interest on the part of many of our fellow Jews. In this article Mr. Hecht brings to light many of the inconceivable atrocities and horrors to which our people across the sea have been subjected by the Nazis. Many Jews who do not have access to the Jewish or Anglo-Jewish press and must rely on daily newspaper for all their information, were jolted out of their complacency by this article. They, as well as our non-Jewish friends, were made conscious of the plight of our innocent people. They were awakened from their lethargy and made to realize the gross brutality which is being meted out abroad today. From this point of view, the effects of the article are gratifying.

However, there is one aspect of the article with which I must take issue. The author has made a dangerous assumption. He describes the post-war peace conference, at which representatives from "all the victims of the German adventure" will be there to pass sentence—all but one: the Jew. Mr. Hecht arrived at this conclusion by asserting that "the Jews have only one unity—that of the target." They are not a race, a people, or a nation, he says, and therefore will have no one to represent them at the judgment table. He further states that "there will not be enough Jews left in Europe to profit by representation were it given them." Both of these statements are subject to challenge.

We must realize that although anti-Semitism is an external force which unites the Jew, it is not the only means. There are many internal factors such as religion, language and philanthropic endeavors. As Israel Zangwill put it, "The Jewish race was cemented not only by persecution, but by common beliefs, common ceremonies, customs of food and drink, common superstitions, even a common language, Hebrew, in the synagogue, and a Saturday Sabbath. Wheresoever the Jew might wander, there he would find his kinsmen, one with him in a hundred subtle ways." To say, then, that anti-Semitism is our only common tie is gross misrepresentation.

The second assertion of the author is likewise unwarranted. Even if there will not be many Jews left in Europe after the war, would that justify an attitude that no Jewish representation is needed or would not be beneficial? Would not justice require, on the contrary, that the voice of Israel be heard demanding retribution for the myriads of our martyred heroes, and assurance of a better world for our people—few

JOIN J.E.A. TO PRESERVE JEWISH HERITAGE. LETTER URGES

To the Editor:
An Open Letter to the Jews
of Indianapolis:

The Jewish Educational Association has been in existence for over thirty-one years. In all these years it has made an effort to transmit our heritage to our children. It endeavored to give an intensive Jewish education to the Jewish children in Indianapolis. During that period it succeeded in training a large number of intelligent and learned men and women.

In these days of chaos and trials the Jewish Educational Association is charged with additional responsibilities to preserve the morale of our people and our spiritual heritage. To accomplish these tasks the Jewish Educational Association is appealing to the Jews of Indianapolis to enroll as members of the Association, thus giving their support to this great cause.
